Architecture You Love Monday, June 20, 2011

Good Morning:

←The 2011 Preservation Awards were announced during Preservation Durham's Annual Meeting on June 15. TMH won a 2011 Advocacy Award, citing our ongoing effort to archive and promote historic preservation "by cataloging the disappearing mid-century modern homes and commercial structures throughout the Triangle region and state, many of which we have lost and, sadly, many of which are currently at-risk." The presentation also cited TMH's weekly newsletter and free listing of modernist houses for sale that helps realtors find buyers for those houses, especially those in danger of being demolished. This marks the fourth public accolade TMH has received. In 2008, TMH received an Award of Merit from the Preservation Society of Chapel Hill and a Gertrude S. Carraway Award from Preservation North Carolina. In 2009, TMH received the Paul E. Buchanan Award from the Vernacular Architecture Forum and a Sir Walter Raleigh Award for Community Appearance from the City of Raleigh.

←What I've Learned: this week featuring Raleigh's Lewis Clarke.

The New York Times recently featured a classic 1970's Modernist house designed by Crutcher Ross in Charlotte. It's for sale, check out the Modernist listings and keep these livable works of art in loving hands.

Keep on searchin' for old Southern Architect / NC Architect Magazines: Thanks to NCSU Archives, Sharon Smart, LS3P, Charles Boney, Aubrey Kirby, Jimmy Edwards, AIANC, and others, we've scanned about 2/3 of these amazing histories of NC design. We're still missing many issues from the 1970's and 1980's. Architects -- please check your attics, basements, and retired partners storage boxes. Help complete this exceptional history of North Carolina architecture. Contact us for details; free pickup in the Triangle area; donations are tax-deductible.

←Mayberry Modernism: I'll speak to the Durham Regional Association of Realtors on Thursday, June 23, at

2pm. The interactive talk showcases the state's surprisingly large collection of Modernist residences from the 1950s through today, particularly those in the Triangle region

T4A welcomes architects, artists, designers, interior designers, realtors, engineers, contractors, property investors, building managers, Modernist homeowners, materials and furniture dealers – or anyone with a huge crush on great architecture. Co-hosted with Special Guests: Mitch Magee, producer/writer/star of the Mister Glasses series (the... best... architecture... videos... ever); and Raleigh architect Jody Brown, author of the hilarious blog, Coffee With an Architect. Visit the fabulous new Museum building, meet our special guests, and make new connections.

Free museum admission, cash bar and light food for sale. See details and our complete summer schedule here.

←Join the Mod Squad for just $10 a month, cancellable at any time, here. You get the full benefits (house tours, great architecture movies, the cool hat) without the upfront membership cost!

PRICE REDUCED: 1985 - The Lee Rocamora and John Long Residence, aka the Shallowford Cliffs Residence, 3811 Ridgeway Drive, Pfafftown NC. Designed by Ed Bouldin. Decorated by Coy Carpenter. Interior has an elevated hearth. Won a 1990 AIANC Honor Award. Exhibited at the NC Museum of Art from March 1992 to March 1993, "From the Ground Up: Experiencing Architecture." Sold in the late 1990's to current owners Elizabeth and Bob Sheretz. Went on the market summer 2010. For sale, $650,000 down from $750,000, here.

Kind regards,

George
